Meet the authors

DUNCAN HINDMARCH

Dr Duncan Hindmarch is an Award Leader, Senior Lecturer and MA/Ed D/PhD supervisor within the School of Life Sciences and Education at Staffordshire University. With a background in teaching English for Speakers of Other Languages, he has over 20 years' teaching experience. Duncan is a Senior Fellow of the Higher Education Academy (Advance HE) and has led development of awards relating to ESOL, Initial Teacher Training and the Academic Professional Apprenticeship. His research interests include education policy and graduate attributes. He has co-authored several books including A Concise Guide to Education Studies and A Complete Guide to the Level 5 Diploma in Education and Training.

LYNN MACHIN

Dr Lynn Machin is an Award Leader, Senior Lecturer and a PhD/EdD/MA lecturer and supervisor within the School of Life Sciences and Education at Staffordshire University. With more than 25 years' experience, Lynn has a background in Initial Teacher Training in further education and in the teaching of foundation, undergraduate and postgraduate education programmes in higher education. Since 2010 she has been involved in designing, delivering and quality assuring education postgraduate programmes delivered in overseas environments. Currently, Lynn is involved in doctoral supervision and examinations as well as a PGCIE and MA delivered in Asia. Lynn's particular research interests relate to transformational learning, learning to learn and teacher training in formal, informal and culturally diverse environments. She has co-authored several books including A Concise Guide to Education Studies and A Complete Guide to the Level 5 Diploma in Education and Training.

SANDRA MURRAY

Sandra Murray is a lecturer within the School of Life Sciences and Education at Staffordshire University. Sandra, having taught for many years in a further education college, has a wide range of experience supporting teachers and lecturers. She has been teaching on Initial Teacher Education programmes since 2006. Her particular research interest is inspirational and outstanding teaching. She has written and co-authored several education books for teachers, including A Concise Guide to Education Studies and A Complete Guide to the Level 5 Diploma in Education and Training.

TINA RICHARDSON

Tina Richardson is an Award Leader and Senior Lecturer within the School of Life Science and Education at Staffordshire University. Tina has taught in compulsory education, further and higher education. For the last 19 years she has been involved in teacher training for further education, in particular the subject specialist qualifications for teachers. Her particular research interest is the use of metacognitive reading strategies in the Functional Skills classroom. As well as teacher training books, such as A Complete Guide to the Level 5 Diploma in Education and Training, Tina has also co-authored a book on using e-readers in the classroom.

HELEN WALMSLEY-SMITH

Dr Helen Walmsley-Smith is an educational and e-learning developer in the Academic Development Unit at Staffordshire University. She is a Senior Fellow of the Higher Education Academy (HEA) and works with staff across the university to support our HEA programme and the use of technology to enhance learning in the classroom and online. With a background in teaching and academic development, she has over 25 years of experience. Her research covers learning design for online courses and she has published papers and book chapters on effective learning design.

Acknowledgements

We would like to thank our families, friends and colleagues for their continued support during the writing of this book.

We also want to thank our publishers, Julia Morris and Di Page, for their professionalism, friendliness, guidance and support.

Finally, we would like to thank you for taking time to read this book. We hope you enjoy reading it and we wish you all the best with your studies.

Duncan, Lynn, Sandra, Tina and Helen

Preface

Welcome to A Concise Guide to Lecturing in Higher Education and the Academic Professional Apprenticeship. This book is aimed at:

- PhD students who have taken on a teaching role;
- lecturers new to higher education;
- lecturers delivering higher education in further education;
- lecturers engaged on university postgraduate teacher training programmes/the Academic Professional Apprenticeship (APA);
- established academics seeking to develop their teaching practice, including gaining Advance HE Fellowship/Senior Fellowship.

The book gives an overview of key principles of teaching, learning, assessment and feedback, enabling you to develop understanding of broader roles of the lecturer such as curriculum design, management, practitioner-led research and career development.

It supports you in the following ways.

- Alignment to the APA (IfA, 2018a) and UK Professional Standards Framework (UKPSF) (HEA, 2011a).
- Focusing on research-informed effective practice.
- Developing systematic, critically informed reflective approaches to improve your practice and that of your colleagues.
- Providing case study scenarios and critical questions to help you understand how theory applies to practice.
- Taking it further sections provide more in-depth professional development.

Each chapter begins with a concept map of topics covered, followed by links to the APA standards. A table of how individual APA and UKPSF standards are covered is also included (Appendix 1). The content in each chapter is supplemented by critical tasks and reflections to encourage you to consider your professional role and identify achievable improvements to practice. The final chapter is aimed at apprentices, detailing the latest guidance on how to work towards your end-point assessments (EPAs), but should also be useful for those on other teacher training awards. The glossary provides a useful reference list of major organisations and terms used within the sector.

In summary, this book provides a concise guide to the various roles of the academic within the higher education sector – teacher, supervisor, researcher and manager to name but a few. We hope you enjoy it.
